

Rose Mary Johnson

Poetry - Volume One

Into the Sea

I wanted you,
like the morning wants the dew.
But, your eyes, they evaded me.
My heart crash waves into the sea.

I searched for you,
like a mystery searches for a clue.
But, your eyes, they wore a blindfold before me.
My heart crash waves into the sea.

Oh, Lord can you feel.
The drunkenness of the swell?
And, deep within me, breathlessly I drown.
Forcefully tugged further, further down.

I needed you,
like the cape needs a view.
But, your eyes, they despise me.
My heart crash waves into the sea.

Crashing and crashing, ripping apart.
Miles and miles from land do I depart.

Across the misty waves, I bleed.
Lord, when the waves do crash, is my want your need?

As the salt burns my eyes,
I will become blind to the tide of high.
And, will your voice tarry for me until the morning sky?
Baffled, I will be in the moonlight.

Oh, Lord, will you be my raft for me, while my heart crash waves into the sea?

Ebony

Up high, so high like a black speck in the sky.
You beckon me as you fly.
Hanging from the wavy white Cirrus.
The shade of your shadow mysterious.

As you masquerade atop a tree,
I hear you roam free.
Cascading across the land.
One another like hand in hand.

When you hover me.
What am I to see?
For my eyes.
In your disguise.

Ebony clusters in a pack of three.
The bellowing caws.
From the sky they flee.
I watch in awe.

Can you help me understand?
The reason you command.
Above me chasing caw.
Surrounding daylight fall.

For my eyes.
In your disguise.
What do I see?
Complete this mystery.

A Love of Lost

It came upon a night so clear.
A love of lost.
A love to fear.
And, so it took my heart away.
Then, kept it locked in a jail to pay.

Its words untrue.
Its meaning never clear.
Its stealer's heart a beating with thoughts of the foolish dear.

And, so, I ponder to despite a tear.
My soul unwanted.
My heart not near.

I realize what a fool I've been.
Falling in love with a saint of sin.
And, so, I write to each one this day.
Please keep your hearts,
And, don't go astray.

Can't Go Back

It all began with your smile.
I should've known it was all made up.
But, my heart, it lingered for a while.
And, that's all it took.

When you began your great pretend.
I should've suspected and ran away.
But, instead quite a fall my heart began.
I was tricked and wanted to stay.

I can't go back to where I was.
Can't go back to where I was.
If I could rewind...push pause.
Rewind...push pause.
But, it's too late to stop the fall.
My heart has lost it all.

All signs are pointing to what my heart will do.
What will it do?
I think it's going to break.

It's going to break.
It's going to break.
Gonna break.

I was the giggle amongst all your friends.
The master plan was in your hands.
Set me up in front of them all.
Expose my secret heart's longing befall.

I can't go back to where I was.
Can't go back to where I was.
If I could rewind...push pause.
Rewind...push pause.

But, it's too late to stop the fall.
My heart has lost it all.

All signs are pointing to what my heart will do.
What will it do?

I think it's going to break.
It's going to break.

It's going to break.
Gonna break.

For what have I done?
My breath is gone.
I cry memories.
A short repeating series.

My heart breaking again.

Life I will live on through it all.
Memories of you I recall.

I breathe you.
Small I am.
But you made me tall.
And I will do best I can.
Breathing you.
Again and again...

I Breathe You

I cannot speak it all.
The words are hidden.
In the fear, for I am small.

You - who are you?
I smile and my heart breaks too.
I yearn and from you have I learned.
Love can be for all concerned.

I breathe you.
Small I am.
Life lives again.
Love mends.

Where have you come from?
I meet you again, into my life you descend.
But what may come?

I fear - a smile and my heart breaks too.
For my life I have learned,
what I hold dear, disappears.

Runaway...
Fear I push away most dear.
You.

Tomorrow

Each day, I roam in the void.
Fighting yesterday's sorrow.
My tears frozen solid.
My heart's breath it borrows.

Without you...

It feels like tomorrow will never come.
And, yesterday is where today comes from.
I never had a chance to say I love you.

I love you.

My commander was fear.
I hid the love within my heart.
Now, I'm lost in a dense atmosphere.
Because we are forever apart.

I keep reliving the last goodbye.
One day fades into another.
I call for you without a reply.
This loss my heart it smothers.

But, If I had told you that I loved you.
Such a chance I could have taken.
Lost to what could have been true.
I roam this world forsaken.

Without you...

It feels like tomorrow will never come.
And, yesterday is where today comes from.
I never had a chance to say I love you.

I love you.

My soul wants yours to know.
These peaceful memories will always be so.
And, no matter how far apart.
Even if it seems we will forever depart.

Empty time passes.
Wistfully floating in the blue.
Forever your memory will encompass.
All that will ever be true.

My soul will always yearn to say, I love you.

I love you.

Whole

Written unto thee,
I still believe.
This eternal memory...

It was when I stood in the purest of our souls.
And my heart fell flattered that you held me whole.

Beyond the mortal embrace,
Comforting confides the velvety grace,
Unto my soul,
Words cannot bestow.
Peaceful, heaven made unto me.
I still believe.

But, many seasons hath past.
Splinters gracefully shattered,
Will brandished and battered,
Misty my eyes for thee, tomorrow will I be?

But time has not the power.
My heart beats cower.
I'll still believe.
Even so such after I leave.

This eternal memory...
For my heart fell flattered when you held me whole.
Calm still mended all that was tattered in the creases below.

Least not,
for all kings have sought,
And through all the riches cannot be bought.
The purest of one's soul,
when you held me whole.

Jesters of Sound

Creeping into a lazy afternoon.
Wind whipping the trees like a tune.
Bobby's strutting in a field across the street.
Faye and June are bobbing in the tree tops keeping the beat.

Near the park bench there's a lonely sandwich.
Jimmy swoops down without a hitch.
Never leave any leftover bread,
nearby cawing loudly says Fred.

We are the jesters of sound.
Cawing to our flock all around.
A little misunderstood.
We're trying to survive in the neighborhood.

Mr. Pester lives down the street.
All fallen snacks are his for keep.
Elder bird without much a word.
They'll wait their turn - those younger birds.

Do you know what it's like?
Live our strife.
The attitude's stiff, so don't push us around.
Those just like us will follow you down.

We're a part of this flock and feathers.
No matter if it's sunny or stormy weather.
Together we glide through the sky.
That's how we fly.

Sometimes the hawk can be in our way.
Could your identity be its prey?
Every one of us has a hawk.
Deep within our fear it stalks.

Don't judge me by my color.
We're more alike than differ hey sister, brother.
My black feathers have beauty just like Jay.
No matter our path, we all have our own way.

We are the jesters of sound.
Cawing to our flock all around.
A little misunderstood.
We're trying to survive in the neighborhood.

Come sing to me - a melody.
Ease the pain.
Escape this lonely shame.
Raise a note.
Give me hope.
Come sing to me - my heart once glee.

Sing to Me

Softly echoed among my widowed tears,
I lie awake.

Darkness hollowed for the star's sake.

My thoughts they drift into my mind's haze.
And, I become lost in a complicated maze.

Come sing to me - a melody.

Ease the pain.

Escape this lonely shame.

Raise a note.

Give me hope.

Come sing to me - my heart once glee.

Vibrations chase my widowed tears.

And, they dance in my blood gracing my fears.

The ceiling bows to the heavens longing to be met.
My heart swells with another passing minute's threat.

And with a silent plea... unto my heart's lead.

Your Eyes

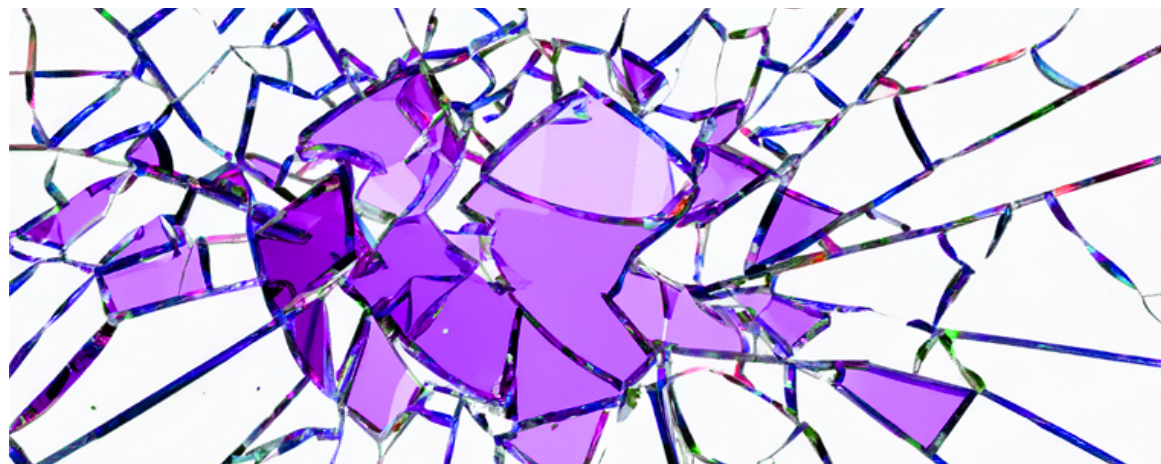

The crowd was so thick.
It was almost night.
The air was cool.
But, I was not.

Like a flash in the dark, your eyes did appear.
Taunting me.
Taunting me.
Then, they would disappear.

I searched all night for your eyes.
For they took my heart to my surprise.
And, when I found them.
They left me dismayed.

For I realized I could not live without them.
Your eyes.
Your eyes.

If you hadn't told me you cared,
could I have been spared?
In the corner of my existence,
I see a chard as it glares.

Another piece.
You brought me here.

Why?

This love I cannot stop.

It's those pieces of me.
It's those thoughts of you.
I fear what some may see.
I fear what to do.
Cornered, I fight and flee.
Needing love like the air I breathe.
Just passing by.
I get up each day.
Please help me here.

Pieces of Me

Scattered, I am still picking up the pieces.
My heart, solemn from the lonely spaces.
Recessed like the grit in the creases.

I find you in stranger's faces.
As I'm passing by...

There are the pieces of me.
And, the thoughts of you.
Floating around in the universe.
Like they haven't a clue.
Bumping into each other.
The loneliness it smothers.
Please help me here.

Fallen, I have stopped looking it in the eye.
Crushing, it is like the breath I take.
Broken, these wings cannot fly.
Thoughtless, I failed to contemplate the stakes.

There are the pieces of me.
And, the thoughts of you.
Floating around in the universe.
Like they haven't a clue.
Bumping into each other.
The loneliness it smothers.
Please help me here.

O'beautiful Dream

O'beautiful dream of mine,
You come to me in my lonely times,
To shelter me from life's harshest winds,
To comfort me from the tears they send.

O'beautiful dream of mine,
You are a friend that's truly kind,
Taking the pieces that life hath shattered,
And, making me feel as if I matter.

O'beautiful dream of mine,
Even if there comes a time,
When reality must descend,
You've taught me an escape from which to pretend.

Echos of My Wounded Heart

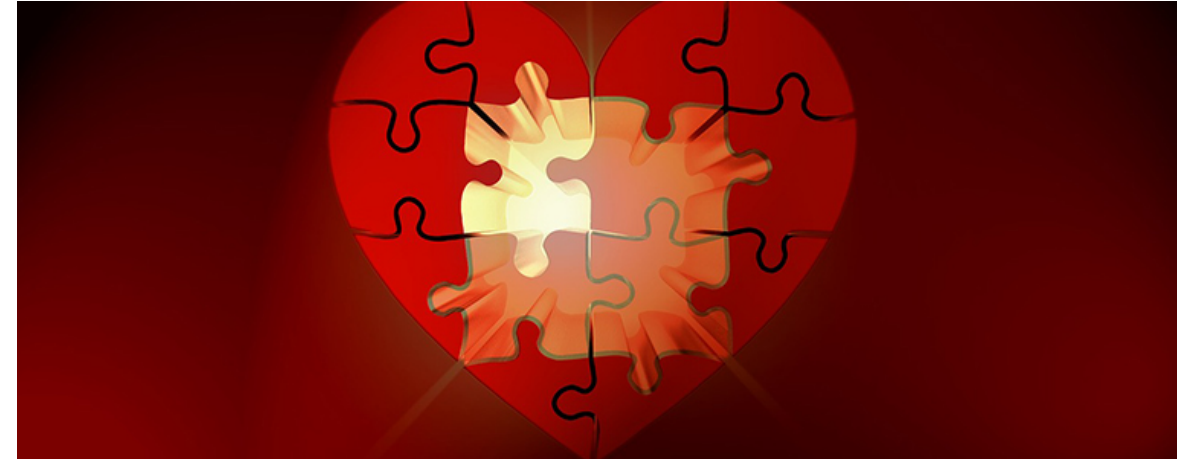

Just the other day, I thought I saw your face.
As I made my way through the crowd,
I realized I had made a mistake.

Perhaps it's my heart playing tricks on my eyes.
It's the pounding of its beat and the echos of its cries.

It's the pounding.
The beating.
The driving force that tears me apart.
It's the echos of my wounded heart.
When will it stop?

It's the pounding.
The beating.
The driving force that tears me apart.
It's the echos of my wounded heart.
When will it stop?

Will it stop the moment I realize that our love wasn't for keeps.
Will it stop the moment I stop trying reach for you so deep.

Just the other night,
I had a dream about you.
You came to me and said the skies were the darkest of blue.
I wanted you to stay but you had to go.
I never had a chance to say what I really wanted you to know.

It's the pounding.
The beating.
The pounding.
The beating.

It's the echos of my wounded heart.
When will it stop?

It's the pounding.
The beating.
The driving force that tears me apart.
It's the echos of my wounded heart.
When will it stop?

Tell me - when was it amusing?
When was it fun?
To pretend such and broadcast it for none.
I was the only fool in the crowd.
You told of your affections for her out loud.

Not my body - Nor the grave, was given time to decay.
I lie here now deep asleep.
You beckon me while it beats.
My heart.

The Haunting Medusa

Darkness blankets me.
Mine eyes cannot see.
I wish and hope with all my heart dutifully.
Anguished I lie here.
Deep asleep I do fall.
Dream world ambushed by her call.

No! I yell.
My heart's at bay.
Gasping for breath, I run away.

A gnarling dog at my chase.
It was those words that were such a waste.

I fear.
My dear.
I cannot concede.
For my heart is broken.
I take such heed.

There's no where to hide,
And, Nowhere to run.
The pain is intense.
The shame is to come.

Unspoken

Staring off into infinity.
Praying not to be forgotten by the divinity.
I roam within the confines of my fear.
My only fight sheds not a tear.

Their words are like a knife.
Deeply cutting across my life.
If they knew, surely they would disgrace me.
Even as they gather and pray the decree.

I have walked amongst them the same.
As I breathe now, I have tired of this game.
Hiding has left me wounded and broken.
My pain lurks in these words unspoken.

What my heart loves would be their jest.
Facing them without my mask, I fear the test.
To the crowd, I stand alone.
The lions hunger and they groan.

But, the fear it feeds.
The same and what differs has equal need.
But, they confuse what is only love.
And, I avoid their wrath, to the side, myself, I shove.

Can I continue walking among them as the same?
To them my difference is an equal to shame.
My aloneness has worn and I'm broken.
My pain lurks in these words unspoken.

God, If I prayed for a release?
Would you bequeath me this?
Let me breathe a creation that's free.
Fear of judgment stop chase me.

Hope has become my dear lost friend.
And, who I am, I fear that can no longer pretend.
But, I carry on because it's what the universe has chosen.
And, I live with the pain in these words unspoken.

About the Author

Rose Mary Johnson resides in the Eastern United States. She enjoys writing and other creative pursuits.

If you want to reach out to her about any of the poetry in this book, please feel free to send her an email at rmj.author.writer@gmail.com.

Poetry presented in this book has a U.S. Copyright.

